TAXATION

An Act to amend the Income Tax Act includes the following provisions which affect the non-resident investor.

Equity-debt ratios of non-resident shareholders

Where the ratio of total shareholders' equity to the debt due to specified non-residents is less than 1:3, then part of the interest paid to such shareholders will not be deductible as an expense. Decreases in the ratio of equity to debt below 1:3 decrease the deductions allowable for interest payments. A specified non-resident is a shareholder who is either a non-resident-owned investment corporation (which by definition is incorporated in Canada) or a non-resident person (whether natural, institutional, or corporate) having at least 25 per cent ownership interest, either individually or in conjunction with associates.

Advertising in non-Canadian newspapers and periodicals

Outlays for advertising in a non-Canadian newspaper or periodical are not a deductible expense for tax purposes, unless the non-Canadian newspaper or periodical meets two sets of conditions. Firstly, it must have been edited in whole or in part in Canada continuously since 26 April 1964, and have been printed and published in Canada continuously since the same date. Secondly, it must be similar in content and in class of readers to the series edited, printed and published in Canada during the year ending on 26 April, 1965.

Inadequate considerations

Where transactions between residents and non-residents are not at arm's length, the sums involved shall be deemed to be the same as they would have been at arm's length.

Small business deductions

A Canadian-controlled private corporation may qualify, under a complicated formula, for a deduction from its tax otherwise payable.

The deduction is calculated as a percentage of $50,000, or of one of three other amounts, if lesser. Each of the other amounts is based on certain aspects of the corporation's financial activities. The effect is that $50,000 is the maximum base on which the deduction can be computed.

The percentage of the basic amount which can be deducted is 25 per cent in 1972, 24 per cent in 1973, 23 per cent in 1974, 22 per cent in 1975 and 21 per cent in 1976 and subsequent taxation years. The maximum tax relief will thus be $12,500 in 1972, $12,000 in 1973, $11,500 in 1974, $11,000 in 1975 and $10,500 in 1976 and subsequent taxation years.

After 1972, or after the first year in which it begins to have a taxable income, an individual corporation will be phased out of receiving this benefit under a formula based on one of two things. One base is the cumulative total of taxable income in 1972 and later years. The alternative base is one and one-third of the amounts deducted from the corporation's income on account of dividends received from specified types of corporations. From each base is deducted a component which consists of one and one-third of taxable dividends paid during those years plus four times the amount by which refundable dividend tax on hand exceeds the dividend refund during the year in question. When either the cumulated taxable income or the cumulated amounts deductible exceed the aggregate of the component based on taxable dividends by $400,000 or more, no tax benefit can be claimed.

The effect of this provision is progressively to exclude corporations from the benefit, beginning in 1973. In general, the larger the business the sooner it will lose the benefit.

Dividends to non-residents

The general rate of withholding tax on dividends paid to non-residents will remain at 15 per cent until 1976, at which time it will be increased to 25 per cent unless reduced by treaty. The withholding tax on dividends paid to non-residents by a corporation having a degree of Canadian ownership, as defined in the Act, will continue to be 5 per cent less than the general rate.

Branches of foreign corporations

Up to the end of 1975, foreign-incorporated companies carrying on business in Canada will continue to pay a branch tax of 15 per cent on net profits that are not reinvested in capital assets. This tax will be increased to 25 per cent for the 1976 taxation year. There is an exemption under this section for foreign-incorporated banks, for foreign corporations whose principal business activity is transportation or communications, and for foreign corporations whose principal business is mining iron ore in Canada. There is an exemption for non-resident insurance companies, except that they pay 25 per cent of the excess of deductions from their Canadian investment funds over liabilities incurred in the course of carrying on insurance business in Canada.

REVIEW OF FOREIGN INVESTMENT

Foreign Investment Review Act

General

The Foreign Investment Review Act received Royal Assent on 12 December 1973. It provides that the acquisition of control over a Canadian business enterprise by non-eligible persons, or the establishment by them in Canada of a new business unrelated to any business which they may already be carrying on in Canada, is subject to approval by the Government. The review process for takeovers will be instituted within 180 days of Royal Assent. Screening of the establishment of new businesses will begin later.

The Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce will be responsible for the review and assessment of proposed investments which are subject to the Act and for making recommendations to the Government. A Foreign Investment Review Agency headed by a Commissioner will be set up to advise and assist the Minister in the administration of the Act. Responsibility for informing the Agency in advance of a proposed acquisition of control or of the proposed establishment of a new business rests with the non-eligible persons concerned.

The main features of the Act are set out below.

Non-eligible Person

A non-eligible person may be either an individual, a corporation, or a government or its agency.

A Canadian citizen is non-eligible only if he is not ordinarily resident in Canada, and is a member of a class of persons to be prescribed by regulation as non-eligible. A landed immigrant is non-eligible only if he has been resident in Canada for more than one year after he could have applied for Canadian citizenship, that is to say, if he has been resident as a landed immigrant for more than six years.

The government of a country other than Canada or of a political sub-division of such a country is a non-eligible person, as is an agency of such a government.

A corporation which is controlled in any manner that results in control in fact by a non-eligible individual or government is itself a non-eligible person.

Procedure for Screening

When a non-eligible person, or a group of persons any member of which is a non-eligible person, proposes to acquire control of a Canadian business enterprise which is greater than the minimum size prescribed, it will have to give the Agency notice in writing of its proposal. In this context, control of a business can be acquired only by the acquisition of shares to which voting rights are attached, or by the acquisition of all or substantially all of the property used for carrying out the business in Canada.

When a non-eligible person, or group of persons containing one, proposes to establish a new business in Canada, and when it does not at the time carry on any business in Canada which is related to the proposed business, then it will have to give the Agency notice in writing of its proposal.

If the Minister believes that any non-eligible person or group of persons containing one has acquired control of an existing business or established a new business without informing the Agency, or proposes to do so, he may require it to give notice in writing to the Agency.

The Minister will review the application, bearing in mind any representations which may be submitted by a province likely to be significantly affected, and will assess whether the proposed or actual investment is likely to be of significant benefit to Canada. If he considers that it is likely to be of significant benefit, he will recommend to the Government that it be allowed.

If no reply is sent to the applicant within 60 days of receipt of his application, he can proceed with his investment.

If the Minister is unable to complete his assessment of an application within 60 days of its receipt by the Agency and requires further time for consideration, or if the Minister is unable to recommend that the application be approved, the applicant will be so informed, and told of his right to make representations in connection with the matter.

If the applicant then wishes to make representations, the Minister will give him a reasonable opportunity to do so, and to make written undertakings about the investment. The Minister may also consult with any other party to the investment, or with any person or authority named by any party to the investment.

After considering all representations and consultations, including any representations submitted by a province that is likely to be significantly affected, the Minister will, if he considers that the investment is likely to be of significant benefit to Canada, recommend to the Government that it be allowed. Otherwise, he will recommend that the Government disallow the investment.

Criteria for Significant Benefit

Five criteria will be used to determine whether a proposed investment is of significant benefit to Canada: (1) the effect on the level and nature of economic activity in Canada, including the effect on employment, on resource processing, on the use of Canadian parts, components and services, and on exports; (2) the degree and significance of participation by Canadians in the business enterprise and its affiliates; (3) the effect on productivity, industrial efficiency, technological development, product innovation, and product variety in Canada; (4) the effect on competition within any industry or industries in Canada; (5) the compatibility with national industrial and economic policies, taking into consideration industrial and economic policy objectives enunciated by any province likely to be significantly affected.

Threshold

With regard to takeovers, the Act will apply initially to acquisitions of control over Canadian business enterprises the gross assets of which exceed $250,000 or the gross annual revenues of which exceed $3,000,000. After screening of the establishment of new businesses has begun, the lower limit to the size of a screenable takeover will be eliminated if the non-eligible investor is not carrying on in Canada a business which is related to the business which he proposes to take over.

The establishment of a new business by a non-eligible person who is not carrying on a related business in Canada will be subject to review irrespective of its size.

FOREIGN INVESTMENT REVIEW ACT

The whole of the Foreign Investment Review Act affects foreign investment in Canada. Consequently, no extracts are reproduced here.

Royal Assent to the Act was given on 12 December 1973. It must be brought into force not later than 180 days after Royal Assent, except for the provisions relating to the establishment of new businesses in Canada. These provisions will be brought into effect after the rest of the Act.

At the time of drafting this amendment, the Foreign Investment Review Act is available in the form of Bill C-132 as passed by the House of Commons on 26 November 1973. It can be obtained from Information Canada.

The Act will be available as such early in 1974, when it will be obtainable from Information Canada.

The Act is Chapter 46 of the Statutes of Canada 1973.

Non-resident shareholders

The general restraints on shareholding are as follows. When 25 per cent or less of the shares are held by non-residents, the percentage held by non-residents cannot be increased above 25 per cent. Where non-resident holdings are more than 25 per cent, they cannot be increased above the existing percentage.

The holdings of a single non-resident, in conjunction with those of his associates, cannot be increased above 10 per cent of the shares, unless they are already more than 10 per cent, in which case they cannot be increased above their current level.

A new company may be set up with no restraint on the allocation of shares to non-residents before the first general meeting of the shareholders.

Where one non-resident held more than 50 per cent of the shares of a company on the prescribed day, there is no upper limit to the amount of shares which may be held by non-residents. The prescribed day is 23 September, 1964, or the date of the first general meeting of the shareholders if the company was incorporated after that date, or one of two special cases. However, if at any time after the prescribed day no one non-resident holds more than 50 per cent of the shares, then the general limitations on non-resident shareholders will apply.

When a resident holds shares on behalf of a non-resident he shall not exercise the voting rights.

When the shares held by or on behalf of a non-resident, together with shares held by or on behalf of the associates of that non-resident, exceed 10 per cent of the stock, the voting rights appertaining to the non-resident's shares may not be used. Except that, when one non-resident and his associates held more than 10 per cent of the stock on the prescribed day, the non-resident's shares may be voted so long as the holdings of himself and his associates do not exceed the percentage held on that day.

Loan Companies

The provisions below are included in the Loan Companies Act. Their effect is to prevent the takeover of Canadian-controlled companies by non-residents; to permit non-residents to retain an existing degree of control; and to permit non-residents to establish new companies in which non-resident investment is uncontrolled.

Directors

At least three-quarters of the directors of a federally incorporated loan company must be Canadian citizens ordinarily resident in Canada.

Non-resident shareholders

The provisions for non-resident shareholders in the Loan Companies Act are the same as those in the Canadian and British Insurance Companies Act.

Trust Companies

The provisions below are included in the Trust Companies Act. Their effect is to prevent the takeover of Canadian-controlled companies by non-residents; to permit non-residents to retain an existing degree of control; and to permit non-residents to establish new companies on which non-resident investment is uncontrolled.

Directors

At least three-quarters of the directors of a federally incorporated trust company must be Canadian citizens ordinarily resident in Canada.

Non-resident shareholders

The provisions for non-resident shareholders in the Trust Companies Act are the same as those in the Canadian and British Insurance Companies Act.

Sales Finance Companies

The provisions below are included in the Investment Companies Act. Their effect is to prevent the takeover of Canadian-controlled companies by non-residents; to permit non-residents to retain an existing degree of control; and to permit non-residents to establish new companies in which non-resident investment is uncontrolled.

Auditor

The auditor of a federally incorporated investment company must be ordinarily resident in Canada.

Non-resident shareholders

The provisions for non-resident shareholders are the same as those in the Canadian and British Insurance Companies Act.

CONSTRAINED-SHARE COMPANIES

The Canada Corporations Act does not itself place constraints on ownership. However, if constraints on the ownership of public companies which do business in Canada are imposed by other federal or provincial legislation, then the Act lays down how they will be applied by the directors of corporations with a federal charter. Provision is made for a company to initiate constraints on non-resident ownership if it so desires.

RESOURCES

Oil and Gas

Oil and gas leases in the Yukon and Northwest Territories can only be granted to a Canadian citizen; or to a Canadian corporation of which the shares are either owned at least 50 per cent by Canadians or listed on a Canadian stock exchange; or to a Canadian corporation which is wholly owned by such a corporation. This provision is made in the Canada

Oil and Gas Land Regulations

Mining

Mining leases in the Northwest Territories can only be granted to a Canadian citizen, or to a corporation the shares of which are either 50 per cent beneficially owned by Canadian citizens or listed on a recognized Canadian stock exchange, or to a Canadian corporation which is wholly owned by such a corporation. This provision is made in the Canada Mining Regulations.

Exploration

The Northern Mineral Exploration Assistance Regulations provide for grants to persons who intend to do exploratory work in Northern Canada. Such a person must be either a Canadian citizen; or a Canadian corporation the shares of which are either owned at least 50 per cent by Canadians or listed on a Canadian stock exchange; or a Canadian corporation which is wholly owned by such a corporation.

TAXATION

An Act to amend the Income Tax Act includes the following provisions which affect the non-resident investor.

Equity-debt ratios of non-resident shareholders

Where the ratio of total shareholders' equity to the debt due to specified non-residents is less than 1:3, then part of the interest paid to such shareholders will not be deductible as an expense. Decreases in the ratio of equity to debt below 1:3 decrease the deductions allowable for interest payments. A specified non-resident is a shareholder who is either a non-resident-owned investment corporation (which by definition is incorporated in Canada) or a non-resident person (whether natural, institutional, or corporate) having at least 25 per cent ownership interest, either individually or in conjunction with associates.

Advertising in non-Canadian newspapers and periodicals

Outlays for advertising in a non-Canadian newspaper or periodical are not a deductible expense for tax purposes, unless the non-Canadian newspaper or periodical meets two sets of conditions. Firstly, it must have been edited in whole or in part in Canada continuously since 26 April 1964, and have been printed and published in Canada continuously since the same date. Secondly, it must be similar in content and in class of readers to the series edited, printed and published in Canada during the year ending on 26 April, 1965.

Inadequate considerations

Where transactions between residents and non-residents are not at arm's length, the sums involved shall be deemed to be the same as they would have been at arm's length.

Small business deductions

A Canadian-controlled private corporation may qualify, under a complicated formula, for a deduction from its tax otherwise payable.

The deduction is calculated as a percentage of $50,000, or of one of three other amounts, if lesser. Each of the other amounts is based on certain aspects of the corporation's financial activities. The effect is that $50,000 is the maximum base on which the deduction can be computed.

The percentage of the basic amount which can be deducted is 25 per cent in 1972, 24 per cent in 1973, 23 per cent in 1974, 22 per cent in 1975 and 21 per cent in 1976 and subsequent taxation years. The maximum tax relief will thus be $12,500 in 1972, $12,000 in 1973, $11,500 in 1974, $11,000 in 1975 and $10,500 in 1976 and subsequent taxation years.

After 1972, or after the first year in which it begins to have a taxable income, an individual corporation will be phased out of receiving this benefit under a formula based on one of two things. One base is the cumulative total of taxable income in 1972 and later years. The alternative base is one and one-third of the amounts deducted from the corporation's income on account of dividends received from specified types of corporations. From each base is deducted a component which consists of one and one-third of taxable dividends paid during those years plus four times the amount by which refundable dividend tax on hand exceeds the dividend refund during the year in question. When either the cumulated taxable income or the cumulated amounts deductible exceed the aggregate of the component based on taxable dividends by $400,000 or more, no tax benefit can be claimed.

The effect of this provision is progressively to exclude corporations from the benefit, beginning in 1973. In general, the larger the business the sooner it will lose the benefit.

Dividends to non-residents

The general rate of withholding tax on dividends paid to non-residents will remain at 15 per cent until 1976, at which time it will be increased to 25 per cent unless reduced by treaty. The withholding tax on dividends paid to non-residents by a corporation having a degree of Canadian ownership, as defined in the Act, will continue to be 5 per cent less than the general rate.

Branches of foreign corporations

Up to the end of 1975, foreign-incorporated companies carrying on business in Canada will continue to pay a branch tax of 15 per cent on net profits that are not reinvested in capital assets. This tax will be increased to 25 per cent for the 1976 taxation year. There is an exemption under this section for foreign-incorporated banks, for foreign corporations whose principal business activity is transportation or communications, and for foreign corporations whose principal business is mining iron ore in Canada. There is an exemption for non-resident insurance companies, except that they pay 25 per cent of the excess of deductions from their Canadian investment funds over liabilities incurred in the course of carrying on insurance business in Canada.

INDIVIDUAL COMPANIES

Telesat Canada

The Telesat Canada Act stipulates that directors of Telesat Canada must be Canadian citizens resident in Canada. All officers of the company must be Canadian citizens. Non-resident ownership of voting shares is limited to 20 per cent of the outstanding common shares held by persons other than Her Majesty in right of Canada, corporations declared by statute to be her agents, and approved telecommunications common carriers. No common shares can be owned by a foreign government or its agents.

Canada Development Corporation

All of the directors of the Canada Development Corporation must be Canadian citizens. A majority of the directors must also be resident in Canada. Holders of voting shares must be either Canadian citizens or residents of Canada. No one person may hold, either individually or in conjunction with other shareholders associated with him, more than 3 per cent of the issued and outstanding voting shares of the company.

INTRODUCTION

In the course of its studies into foreign direct investment in Canadian industry, the Foreign Investment Division has assembled a number of extracts from Canadian legislation in related fields. Some of them define Canadian ownership or control of business enterprises, some make specific provision for its encouragement, and some deal with transactions of a type likely to be found within an international enterprise.

The first working paper to be based on this material was "Selected Readings In Laws And Regulations Affecting Foreign Investment In Canada" which was issued in December 1969. This was followed by "Selected Readings In Laws And Regulations Affecting Foreign Investment In Canada, April 1971"; by "Selected Readings In Laws And Regulations Affecting Foreign Investment In Canada, June 1971"; by "Selected Readings In Laws and Regulations Affecting Foreign Investment In Canada, August 1971"; and by "Selected Readings in Laws and Regulations Affecting Foreign Investment in Canada, September 1971". The present working paper supersedes the previous ones.

The main change from "Selected Readings in Laws and Regulations Affecting Foreign Investment in Canada, September 1971" is the inclusion of An Act to amend the Income Tax Act. This Act had been given Royal Assent by the date of writing, but had not yet been proclaimed.

When the previous version was issued in September 1971, the Investment Companies Act and the Canada Development Corporation Act had been given Royal Assent. They have since been proclaimed.

No claim is made that the selection of quotations in this or the previous working papers is exhaustive, and the texts quoted should be regarded only as a guide. Full references are given to the documents from which the items have been extracted, so as to assist the reader in finding authoritative sources.

To the best of the Division's knowledge, the extracts were up to date at mid-day on 20 March, 1972.

- (a) that according to those records the individuals who hold the shares are individuals having addresses in Canada; and
- (b) that the person by whom the statement is signed has no knowledge or reason to believe that the shares are not beneficially owned by Canadian citizens.

Change of status of resident corporation or trust

(5) Where after the 30th day of April 1967 a corporation or trust that was at any time a resident becomes a non-resident, any shares of the capital stock of the bank acquired by the corporation or the trust while it was a resident and held by it while it is a non-resident shall be deemed, for the purposes of sections 53 and 54, to be shares held by a resident for the use or benefit of a non-resident.

Limit on shares held by non-residents

Sec. 53 (1) The Bank shall refuse to allow a transfer of a share of the capital stock of the bank to a non-resident to be made or recorded in a register of transfers of the bank

- (a) if, when the total number of shares of the capital stock of the bank held by non-residents exceeds twenty-five per cent of the total number of the issued and outstanding shares of such stock, the transfer would increase the percentage of such shares held by non-residents; or
- (b) if, when the total number of shares of the capital stock of the bank held by non-residents is twenty-five per cent or less of the total number of the issued and outstanding shares of such stock, the transfer would cause the total number of such shares held by non-residents to exceed twenty-five per cent of the total number of the issued and outstanding shares of such stock.

(2) The bank shall refuse to allow a transfer of a share of the capital stock of the bank to any person ...

- (a) if, when the total number of shares of the capital stock of the bank held by such person and by other shareholders associated with him, if any, exceeds ten per cent of the total number of the issued and outstanding shares of such stock, the transfer would increase the percentage of such shares held by such person or by other shareholders associated with him, if any; or
- (b) if, when the total number of shares of the capital stock of the bank held by such person and by other shareholders associated with him, if any, is ten per cent or less of the total number of the issued and outstanding shares of such stock, the transfer would cause the total number of such shares held by such person and by other shareholders associated with him, if any, to exceed ten per cent of the issued and outstanding shares of such stock.

(3) The bank shall refuse to allow a transfer of a share of the capital stock of the bank to

Computing non-resident holdings

Sec. 55 (4) Where for any of the purposes of section 53, the bank requires that the total number of shares of the capital stock of the bank held by non-residents be established, the bank may calculate the total number of such shares held by non-residents to be the total of

- (a) the number of shares held by all shareholders whose recorded addresses are places outside Canada; and

- (b) the number of shares held by all shareholders each of whose aggregate individual holdings of such shares has a par value of more than five thousand dollars and whose recorded addresses are places within Canada but who to the knowledge of the bank are non-residents:

and such calculation may be made as of a date not earlier than the 1st day of May, 1967 or four months before the day on which the calculation is made, whichever is the later date.

Limiting Transfers

(5) Where by any calculation made under subsection (4) the total number of shares held by non-residents is under twenty-five per cent of the total issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the bank, the number of shares the transfer of which by residents to non-residents the bank may allow to be made or recorded in the registers of transfers of the bank shall be so limited as not to increase the total number of shares held by non-residents to more than twenty-five per cent of the total issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the bank.

(2) Where more than twenty-five per cent of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the bank were held on the 22nd day of September 1964 in the name or right of or for the use or benefit of any one non-resident, the bank, so long as the total number of shares of the capital stock of the bank held by non-residents exceeds twenty-five per cent of the total number of issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the bank,

- (a) shall refuse to allow a transfer of a share of the capital stock of the bank to a non-resident to be made or recorded in a register of transfers of the bank unless the transfer is from a non-resident to any associates of the non resident; and
- (b) shall not accept a subscription for a share of the capital stock of the bank by a non-resident;

but if at any time after the 22nd day of September 1964 there is no one person in whose name or right or for whose use or benefit more than ten per cent of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the bank are held, this subsection ceases thereafter to have any force or effect.

Exception for individual non-resident and associate holdings

if it is shown to the bank on evidence satisfactory to it that the share was at the commencement of the prescribed day held in the right of or for the use or benefit of the transferee.

Voting rights on non-resident holdings acquired after 22nd September 1964.

(6) If, at any time after the 22nd day of September 1964 and before the first day of May 1967, the bank allowed to be made or recorded in a register of transfers of the bank a transfer of any share of the capital stock of the bank to a non-resident that it would have been required to refuse under section 53 had that section come into force on the 23rd day of September 1964, no person shall, in person or as proxy, exercise the voting rights pertaining to such share until such time as the share is transferred to a resident, unless

- (a) the total par value of all shares of the capital stock of the bank held by the non-resident is not more than five thousand dollars, or but nothing in this subsection shall be construed to permit any person to exercise the voting rights pertaining to a share of the capital stock of the bank that is held in the name of the government of a foreign state or any political subdivision thereof or an agent of the government of a foreign state or any political subdivision thereof, if the transfer of the share to the holder was made or recorded in a register of transfers of the bank on or after the prescribed day.

Sec. 17 (1) The directors of a company registered to transact the business of life insurance may allow or refuse to allow the entry in any such book or books, or any transfer of stock that would, in the opinion of the directors, result in that stock being held in the name or right of, or for the use or benefit of,

Limit on shares held by non-residents

Sec. 19. (1) The directors of a life company shall refuse to allow in the book or books referred to in section 15 the entry of a transfer of any share of the capital stock of the company to a non-resident

(2) The directors of a life company shall not, after the day of commencement of the first general meeting of the shareholders of the company, allot, or allow the allotment of, any shares of the capital stock of the company to any non-resident in circumstances where, if the allotment to such non-resident were a transfer of those shares, the entry thereof in such book or books would be required, under subsection (1), to be refused by the directors.

Penalty

(3) Default in complying with the provisions of this section does not affect the validity of a transfer or allotment of a share of the capital stock of the life company that has been entered in such book or books, but every director who knowingly authorizes or permits such default is guilty of an offence punishable on summary conviction and is liable to a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year or to both. 1964-65, c.40, s.3.

Exception for non-resident ownership of company

(2) Where more than fifty per cent of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of a life company are held in the name or right of or for the use or benefit of one non-resident at the commencement of the prescribed day, Sections 19 to 21 do not apply to or in respect of that company; but if at any time thereafter there is no one non-resident in whose name or right or for whose use or benefit more than fifty per cent of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the life company are held, those sections apply from and after that time to in and respect of that company.

Exception for individual non-resident

(3) Where at the commencement of the prescribed day the number of shares of the capital stock of a life company held in the name or right of or for the use or benefit of a non-resident together with the number of such shares, if any, held at the commencement of that day in the name or right of or for the use or benefit of any associates of the non-resident exceed ten per cent of the number of shares of such stock at that time issued and outstanding, the voting rights pertaining to the shares held in the name or right of or for the use or benefit of the non-resident may notwithstanding subsection 20(2) be exercised, in person or by proxy, so long as the percentage of such shares held by or for the non-resident and associates does not exceed either the percentage of such shares held by or for the non-resident and associates at the commencement of the prescribed day or the smallest percentage of such shares held by or for the non-resident and associates on any subsequent day; but this subsection shall not be construed to prohibit the exercise of voting rights in circumstances where section 20 does not apply.

Transferring beneficial holding

(6) The directors of a life company may, notwithstanding section 19, allow in the book or books referred to in section 15 the entry of a transfer of any share of the capital stock of the company from a resident to a non-resident where it is shown to the directors on evidence satisfactory to them that the share was at the commencement of the prescribed day held by the resident in the right of or for the use or benefit of the non-resident.

Transfer by nominees

(2) Notwithstanding subsection (1), the directors of a constrained-share company may allow a transfer of any voting share of the company to be made or recorded in the register of the company where the transfer is to a member of the constrained-class, if it is shown to the directors on evidence satisfactory to them that the share was on the prescribed day held in the right of or for the use or benefit of the transferee.

Subscription for shares

3. (1) The directors of a constrained-share company shall not accept a subscription for a voting share of the company,
- (a) by any member of the constrained-class if, at the time the share is subscribed for, the total number of voting shares of the company held by or for the member of the constrained-class exceeds the net prescribed percentage for the company; and
 - (b) except as otherwise provided in subsection (2), in other circumstances where if the subscription were a transfer of the voting share the directors would be required under section 2 of these provisions to refuse to allow the transfer to be made or recorded; but in the case of a subscription pursuant to an offer of original unsubscribed capital stock, or of any increased capital stock of the company, to the shareholders of the company, the directors may count as shares issued and outstanding all the voting shares included in the offer to its shareholders.

Exception

(2) Subject to paragraph 1 (a), where an offer of voting shares of the original unsubscribed capital stock, or of any increased capital stock, of a constrained-share company is made to its shareholders, the directors may accept any subscription.

- (a) if the terms of the offer contain provisions to the effect that in the case of a voting share offered to a shareholder who, at the time fixed for determining the shareholders to whom the offer is made, is not, to the knowledge of the directors, a member of the constrained-class, a subscription will not be accepted if the voting share is to be recorded in the name of a member of the constrained class;
- (b) if the subscription is accompanied by a declaration by the subscriber stating that the person in whose name the voting share is to be recorded is not a member of the constrained-class; and
- (c) if, on the basis of such declaration, the acceptance of the subscription is not contrary to the terms of the offer.

Effect of default

4. Default in complying with section 2 or 3 of these provisions does not affect the validity of a transfer of a share of the constrained-share company that has been made or recorded in the register of the company or the validity of the acceptance of a subscription for a share of the company.

Voting rights restricted

5. (1) Except as otherwise provided by section 7 of these provisions, where a person who is not a member of the constrained-class holds shares of a constrained-share company in the right of or for the use or benefit of a member of the constrained-class, such person shall not, in person or by proxy, exercise the voting rights pertaining to these shares.

(2) Except as otherwise provided by section 7 of these provisions, if the proportion of the shares of a constrained-share company held by or for a member of the constrained-class exceeds the net prescribed percentage for the company, no person shall, in person or by proxy, exercise the voting rights pertaining to any shares held in the name of the member of the constrained-class.

Exception

(3) Where it appears from the register of the company that the total par value of shares, or the total number of shares, of the company held by a shareholder is not more than the value or number specified for the purpose in the letters patent or supplementary letters patent by which the company became a constrained-share company, a person acting as proxy for the shareholder at a general meeting of the company is entitled to assume that the shareholder holds the shares in his own right and for his own use and benefit, unless the knowledge of the person acting as proxy is to the contrary.

No voting of shares of "taken-over" shareholder

(4) Where, after the commencement of the prescribed day of a constrained-share company, a corporation or trust that was at any time not a member of the constrained-class in respect of the shares of the company becomes a member of such constrained-class, the shares of the company acquired by the corporation or trust while it was not a member of the constrained-class and held by it while it is a member of that constrained-class shall not be voted at any meeting of the company.

Effect of contravention

(5) If a provision of this section is contravened at a general meeting of the shareholders of a company, no proceeding, matter or thing at that meeting is void by reason only of such contravention, but any such proceeding, matter or thing is, at any time within twelve months from the day of commencement of the general meeting at which the contravention occurred, voidable at the option of the directors of the company by a by-law duly passed by the directors and sanctioned by two-thirds of the votes cast at a special general meeting of the shareholders called for the purpose.

By-laws

6. (1) The directors of a constrained-share company may make such by-laws as they deem necessary to carry out the intent of these provisions and in particular, but without restricting the generality of the foregoing, the directors may make by-laws

- (a) requiring any person in whose name a share of the company is held to submit a declaration
 - (i) with respect to his direct or indirect ownership of any shares of the company,
 - (ii) whether the shareholder and any person in whose right or for whose use or benefit the share is held are residents,
 - (iii) whether the shareholder is associated with any other shareholder,
 - (iv) whether he is a Canadian citizen,
 - (v) if the shareholder is a corporation or trust, information establishing that the shareholder is a resident; and
 - (vi) with respect to such other matters as the directors may deem relevant for the purposes of these provisions;
- (b) requiring any person desiring to have a transfer of a share to him made or recorded in the register of the company or desiring to subscribe for a share of the company to submit such declaration as may be required pursuant to this section in the case of a shareholder; and
- (c) providing for the determination of the circumstances in which any declarations shall be required, their form and the times at which they are to be submitted.

Where declaration pending

(2) Where pursuant to any by-law made under subsection (1) any declaration is required to be submitted by any shareholder or person in respect of the transfer of or subscription for any share, the directors may refuse to allow such transfer to be made or recorded in the register of the company or to accept such subscription until a declaration satisfactory to the directors has been submitted to them.

Reliance upon information

(3) In determining for the purposes of these statutory provisions whether a person is or is not a resident or a Canadian, whether an individual is a Canadian citizen, whether a corporation is directly or indirectly controlled by persons who are not residents or any other circumstances relevant to the performance of the duties of the directors under these provisions, the company and any director, officer, employee or agent of the company may rely upon any statements made in any declaration submitted under these provisions or rely upon the knowledge of any of the directors of such circumstances; and the company, directors, officers, employees or agents are not liable in any action for anything done or omitted by them in good faith as a result of any conclusions made by them on the basis of any such statements or knowledge.

Computing non-resident holdings

(4) Where, for any of the purposes of these provisions, the directors require to establish the total number of voting shares of the company held by non-residents, the directors may calculate the total number of such shares held by non-residents to be the total of

- (a) the number of voting shares held by all shareholders whose recorded addresses are places outside Canada; and
- (b) the number of voting shares held by all shareholders whose recorded addresses are places within Canada but who, to the knowledge of the directors, are non-residents; and such calculation may be made as of a date not earlier than the prescribed day or four months before the day on which the calculation is made, whichever is the later date.

Limiting transfers to non-residents

(5) Where by any calculation made under subsection (4) the total number of voting shares held by non-residents is equal to or less than the gross prescribed percentage for the company, the number of voting shares, the transfer of which by residents to non-residents the directors may allow to be made or recorded in the register of the company, shall be so limited as not to increase the total number of voting shares held by non-residents to more than the gross prescribed percentage.

Exception for small holdings

(6) Notwithstanding section 2 of these provisions, where in the case of a transfer of any shares of the company to a transferee it appears that

- (a) the total par value of voting shares, or the total number of voting shares, of the company held by the transferee as shown by the register of the company at a date not more than four months earlier is not more than the value or number specified for the purpose in the letters patent or supplementary letters patent by which the company became a constrained-share company, and
- (b) the total par value of voting shares, or total number of voting shares, of the company included in the transfer and any voting shares acquired by the transferee after the date mentioned in paragraph (a) and still held by him as shown by the register of the company is not more than the value or number specified for the purpose in the letters patent or supplementary letters patent by which the company became a constrained-share company, the directors are entitled to assume that the transferee is not and will not be associated with any member of the constrained-class and, unless the knowledge of the directors is to the contrary, that he is not a member of the constrained-class.

Constrained ownership of shares

7. (1) Notwithstanding section 2 or 3 of these provisions, where it is necessary for a constrained-share company to reduce the total percentage of its voting shares or of any class of its voting shares, held by or for members of the constrained-class after the prescribed day for either of the purposes described in subsection 41.1 (2), if at the commencement of the prescribed day the number of voting shares of the constrained-share company exceeded the prescribed percentage for the company, the directors, so long as the total number of voting shares held by or for all members of the constrained-class exceeds the gross prescribed percentage,

- (a) shall refuse to allow a transfer of a voting share of the company to a member of the constrained-class to be made or recorded in the register of the company; and
- (b) shall not accept a subscription for a voting share of the company by a member of the constrained-class.

Exception for individual holdings

(2) Where at the commencement of the prescribed day the number of voting shares of the company held by or for a member of the constrained-class exceeded the net prescribed percentage for the company, the voting rights pertaining to the shares held by or for that member may, notwithstanding section 5 of these provisions, be exercised, in person or by proxy, so long as the percentage of such shares held by or for such member does not exceed either the percentage of such shares held by or for him at the commencement of the prescribed day or the smallest percentage of such shares held by or for him on any subsequent day; but this subsection shall not be construed to prohibit the exercise of voting rights in circumstances where section 5 of these provisions does not apply."
